Introduction

The goal of the Responsible Down Standard is to ensure that the waterfowl in the down supply chain are treated humanely.

The Responsible Down Standard (RDS) is intended to ensure that independent third-party assessment of all aspects of animal rearing and handling, as well as chain of custody through the entire supply chain, will help to improve the welfare of animals and, at the same time, provide retailers and consumers alike with greater confidence in responsible sourcing.

The purpose of the RDS Logo Use and Claims Guide 2.1 is to provide guidance for companies making claims about their use of RDS certified down. The intended users of the Guide are organizations providing auditing and certification services for the RDS (“Certification Bodies”), farms and companies selling RDS certified products to other companies (“certified Organizations”), and retailers selling certified RDS Product.

This RDS Logo Use and Claims Guide 2.1 accompanies the Responsible Down Standard, and is a required element of the standard. The certification requirements connected to the use of the standard are drawn from the Content Claim Standard (CCS) requirements to ensure full chain of custody for the input material. Updates to the RDS Logo Use and Claims Guide 2.1 and other relevant documents can be found online. Check the RDS website for more information: http://responsibledown.org/.

How to use this Document

This document sets forth the overall requirements for labeling with the RDS. Section A describes the prerequisites for making RDS claims or using the RDS logo. Section B describes allowed logo use and accompanying claims language needed to create a claim’s artwork. Section C describes the process of getting your claims approved prior to use.
What is an RDS Claim?

An RDS claim is any statement that makes reference to the RDS. RDS claims may include any combination of logo use, text claims, and/or links to additional information that mention the RDS.

RDS claims fall under one or more of the following categories:

Product-Specific claim: This type of claim indicates or implies that a specific product meets the requirements of the RDS. These claims may be made on or off the products. Examples of Product-Specific claims include hangtags with the RDS logo, or reference to the RDS in the description of a product or group of products in a catalog, website, or point of sale marketing.

General marketing claim: This type of claim indicates or implies that a company meets the requirements of the RDS, purchases RDS certified products, or certifies in accordance with the RDS. Examples of General marketing claims include reference to the RDS on the CSR page of a website or in a general statement (that does not refer to a product) in a catalog or point of sale marketing.

Business-to-business (B2B) claim: This type of claim uses the RDS name or RDS logo to identify semi-finished batches or lots directly, or on invoices or shipping documents.

Consumer-facing claim: This type of claim is directed at consumers. Examples of consumer-facing claims are hangtags, product descriptions in catalogs or websites, in-store displays, etc.

Any claim that makes reference to the RDS shall meet the requirements of this document.
Section A – Am I allowed to make an RDS Claim?

A1. Prerequisites for Product-Specific RDS Claims

In order for products to be sold with consumer-facing RDS claims the following requirements shall be met:

A1.1 All down in the product shall be RDS certified.

A1.2 The product shall be RDS certified up through the seller in the final business-to-business transaction.

   Example: Brand A sells RDS certified duvets to Retailer B. Brand A shall be RDS certified and the products Brand A sells shall be RDS certified. Retailer B is not required to be certified.

A1.3 Any Product-Specific claims or statements about the RDS shall be aligned with information from the relevant Transaction Certificate (e.g. product description, material Content, etc.) and shall be true, accurate, and not misleading.

A1.4 The RDS may only be mentioned in connection with a product if the product category is listed on the Scope Certificate held by the certified Organization.

A1.5 Only certified Organizations may apply Product-Specific claims with reference to the RDS (e.g. hangtags, sewn-in labels).

A1.6 Any and all use of the RDS logo shall follow the guidelines in Section B.

A1.7 Approval of claim artwork shall be obtained before use following the guidelines in Section C1.

A2. Prerequisites for RDS General Marketing Claims

A2.1 Certified Organizations may make general marketing claims about the RDS, their certification to the RDS, and about the certification of their RDS products as long as all statements are true, accurate, and not misleading.

A2.2 Qualified certified Organizations using the 100% Claimed Material Exemption – described in Section D2 of the CCS – may make general RDS marketing claims about the certified Content of all their products, including logo use. Some on-product claims may be used, see Section B5.2 for allowed language.

A2.3 Non-certified organizations making general marketing claims about the RDS may include retailers or companies that have made the commitment to use RDS products.
Any associated claims about the RDS in relation to the organization or its products shall be true, accurate, and not misleading. See Sections B4.4 and B5.3 for further guidance.

Example: If Retailer B carries both RDS and non-RDS products, it shall not lead the consumer to assume that all products are RDS certified (e.g. “Retailer B sells RDS products.”).

CBs may indicate that they are authorized to certify goods to the RDS in their marketing and public relations materials. Any claims or statements about the RDS in relation to the CB or its products shall be true, accurate, and not misleading.

A2.4
Section B – What are the Requirements for RDS Claims?

B1. General Logo Use

B1.1 For Business-to-Business claims of products, the RDS logo is not required (e.g. shipping labels or packing slips).

B1.2 When the RDS logo is present; it shall be kept at a reasonable distance from other product or Content claims that do not refer to the RDS. See examples below:

Allowed

Not Allowed (adjacent claim is not associated with the Responsible Down Standard)

B2. Logo Use with Product-Specific Claims

B2.1 RDS logos shall be obtained from the Certification Body that has certified the product. Only certified Organizations may apply RDS logos (e.g. hang-tags, sewn-in labels) to products.

B2.2 When the RDS is referenced in Product-Specific claims, the RDS logo and required language from Section B3 shall appear adjacent to the claim. When the RDS reference is not intended for the consumer (e.g. sewn-in labels), it is not required that the logo or language from Section B3 appear. Logo use shall follow the specifications set out in Section B6.

B2.3 Individual components of a product may be identified as certified to the RDS. For example, only the top layer of a sleeping bag may be made with RDS certified down, while the bottom layer may use synthetic fill. Product-Specific RDS claims are prohibited if the product contains any non-certified down.

B2.4 The RDS logo shall not be permanently printed on or affixed to any reusable packaging (e.g. shoeboxes, hangers).

B2.5 The brand or retailer is responsible to check on the labeling laws of the country(ies) of sale to ensure they are meeting all legal requirements.
B3. Language for Product-Specific Claims

B3.1 When an RDS logo appears in Product-Specific claims the following shall appear adjacent:

1. Reference to the last certified Organization’s responsible Certification Body (i.e. Certification Body’s name and/or logo); and
2. Reference to the last certified Organization (i.e. certified Organization’s name and/or logo as it appears on the Scope Certificate and/or license number provided by the CB).

The Certification Body and certified Organization shall appear at least once on the Product-Specific claim of each product. See examples of allowed accompanying language below.

It shall be clear to what certification the information references (e.g. “Certified to the RDS by CB”). This is necessary when multiple certification logos are present on a product.

B3.2 RDS logos may also be accompanied by additional language as long as it is true, accurate, and not misleading. For example:

- Certified to the RDS
- Responsible Down Standard Certified
- Contains RDS Certified Down
- RDS Certified Down
- Responsibledown.org
- Additional language may also be used, such as: “The goal of the Responsible Down Standard is to ensure that the waterfowl in the down supply chain are treated humanely.”

The RDS logo may not be accompanied by additional language that implies the product has been certified to meet broad environmental or social requirements. For example:

- Ethically produced
- Environmentally responsible
- 100% Sustainable

B4. Logo Use in General Marketing Claims

B4.1 For General marketing claims, it is encouraged to use an RDS logo, but not required.
B4.2 A certified Organization may use the RDS logo in marketing and public relations materials to indicate its use of the RDS, as long as it has taken steps to ensure that all statements are true, accurate, and not misleading.

B4.3 Qualified certified Organizations using the 100% Claimed Material Exemption – described in Section D2 of the CCS – may use the RDS logo in marketing, public relations, and on-product claims. See Section B5.2 for language guidance.

B4.4 A non-certified organization may use the RDS logo in General marketing claims, as long as it has taken steps to ensure that all associated statements are true, accurate, and not misleading. However, the use shall not in any way imply that the Organization itself is certified. See Section B5.3 for language guidance.

B4.5 CBs may use the RDS logos to indicate that they are authorized to certify goods to RDS standards in their marketing and public relations materials, as long as it has taken steps to ensure that all statements are true, accurate, and not misleading.

B5. Language for General Marketing Claims

B5.1 A certified Organization may indicate that it is certified to produce (or sell) RDS Product in accordance with the Responsible Down Standard in its marketing and public relations materials. Any statement made about the RDS must be true, accurate, and not misleading.

B5.3 A non-certified organization may indicate their use of the RDS. General marketing claims may appear in online publications, catalogs, and any other location. These claims may be stated in general terms, such as “We support the Responsible Down Standard in our use of down.” A non-certified organization shall be willing and able to show proof of its claim (e.g. Transaction Certificates of its RDS products purchased).

The following language may not appear in RDS General marketing Claims of non-certified organizations:

- “Certified” or any wording that indicates certification of a product or the non-certified Organization.
- “Product” or any reference to specific products or product categories.
- Any percentage or wording that indicates percentage of certified Claimed Material or products.
Statements about intended use – similar to the following may be used: “Our Brand plans to source all RDS down by Fall 2016.” or “Brand X supports the RDS and is committed to certification within the next three years.”
